BRAINSTORMS

Last week we had no Brainstorms but I agree with Leon Shirley who said, "With that big error on the front page, you had enough Brainstorms!" Boy, was it embarrassing to me to find I had used the wrong name under one of our bank presidents. Maybe, it would not have been so bad if the namd had been someone's other than the president of Elba's only other bank. However, with both men being the professionals they are, they took it as an honest mistake and bolstered my feelings at a time when I was mighty low. To both Oscar Vaughan, Jr., president of The Elba Exchange

Bank, and to Lamar Rainer, Jr., president of The Peoples Bank, I give that special THANKS that could only come from someone who went down the road I travel-

There is promise in the State Legislature of a bill to relieve the "local effort" school money deadline. The school systems will be given an additional year to comply under the new bill already passed the House of Representatives. Also, under the bill, the penalty will be reduced to only the amount short in "local effort" rather than the complete cut-off of state funds if it meets the requirements and the balance of the county does not. In this day of public frowning on any additional taxes, we can now hope the schools can tighten belts a little more and maybe get by without additional taxes. It may be just a dream.

The business about revenue sharing by the federal government sounds good until we stop to ask where the money is coming from. My simple mind would much rather see the feds cut taxes rather than take our money and send back the part they did not use in big Washington salaries. They say Alabama gets back more than it pays but the goods we buy from the North already have the tax factor figured into the base price. This means we are paying hidden taxes and not getting any credit--Mr. Nixon, thanks for the offer but just cut my taxes rather than "share."

Rumors are flying that the State Senate will not pass Governor Wallace's bond issue and tax (inspection fee) bills. Close observers think probably the Senators are rattling their chains and will soon pass the administration bills in about the wording they carry now. No com-

Fishermen take note. Two weeks ago today (Thursday) Charles Hayes III said he could be quoted in saying the fish would be biting good in about ten days. From reports I get he was right...this time. Of course, he gave himself an out by saying "if they are not biting then it is because the weather is either two degrees too hot or two degrees too cold. Again, no

Well, Heddy and I went to see that highly tooted movie "Love Story" one night last week. The movie was rated GP, which I thought meant the story might be too deep for children. As it turned out I was embarrassed several times at the strong language used in the movie. The young children sitting just in front of us giggled each time they heard some bad language. Later some older children said they heard worse than that every day at school! Maybe that is so, but I still believe boys or girls that can't talk without using such language are trying to prove to someone(maybe themselves) that they are mature enough to think for themselves yet by that very action admit they are not mature Oh yes! The movie would have been good if the obviously out of place curse words had been omitted. It is spring and Bert Morrow has turned his head to ways of making money. He just called me and asked if I wanted to buy a rabbit. If there is one thing I don't want or need it is a rabbit, but thanks for calling Bert.
